EVENING EDITION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA::::::APRIL 27.

LECTURE.—Rev. A. J. Ryan will Lecture at Davis' Hall, Tuesday night, 27th inst., at 8 o'clock. apr26-d2t

S. K. JOHNSON, Esq.—The efficient and popular Assistant Superintendent of the Georgia Railroad, S. K. Johnson, Esq., is in the city, looking after the interest of that road.

GEN. G. "TIGE" ANDERSON.—The energetic agent of the Georgia Railroad, in Atlanta, Gen. "Tige" Anderson left last night for Augusta. Perhaps he will add a new "chapter" to his history, and be joined in the "mystic tie," with a faithful heart. What does "Charlie" think of it?

THE SUPPOSED MYSTERIOUS MURDER.—From facts coming to our knowledge this morning, we are forced to believe that the Italian Louige Leone whose death we chronicled yesterday, committed suicide. He was observed crying on the day previous, and other circumstances tend to establish the fact.

A VALUABLE ACCESSION.—We are informed by S. K. Johnson, Esq., Assistant Superintendent of the Georgia Railroad, that on yesterday he received a telegram from Danville, Va., stating that a large number of hands from a tobacco factory there, were en route to Atlanta, to engage in the same business, and asking if he would pass them over the Georgia Road at reduced rates. With his usual promptness, liberality, and foresight, he immediately replied in the affirmative. We extend a cordial welcome to them.

The Semi-Centenary Anniversary of Odd-Fellowship.

The Atlanta Odd Fellows visited Griffin yesterday, by invitation of Warren Lodge, No. 20, of that place, to unite with them in celebrating the Semi-Centenary Anniversary of the order. Although the early part of the day betokened rain, yet the clouds held back their pluvial drops, and nothing occurred to interrupt or mar the harmony of the proceedings.

The Odd Fellows of this city left here under charge of Thomas P. Fleming, P. G. M., and Samuel W. Grubb, Marshal of the day, and reached Griffin at 10 o'clock. They were met at the depot by a band of music, and Col. John H. Jossey, the Marshal of the day in Griffin, and escorted to the Lodge room. From the Lodge room the Odd Fellows filed in procession to the Methodist Church. The grace and beauty of Griffin (and the little girls of Griffin are beautiful and it grows on them as they get older,) were out in strong numbers, arrayed in raiment which, added to their personal charms, made each one look a Queen. The Church was not able to hold the vast concourse.

The Choir under the direction of Prof. Schoeller, rendered the chorus and solo, from Haydn's "creation" of "the marvelous works" as the opening voluntary, with charming effect. The singing was perhaps as fine as was ever listened to by any audience. The first prayer was by Rev. Dr. Jones, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Griffin. The closing prayer was by the pastor of the Griffin Methodist Church. The Anniversary address was delivered by Hon. J. S. Boynton, and was a masterly and eloquent tribute to the beauties, benefits, and bearings of Odd Fellowship. It was received with marked satisfaction, and deeply impressed "out siders" with the order. The "Thanksgiving Hymn" and other hymns by the Choir, sustained their reputation as "singists" of the first order.

After the order of exercises at the church was through with, the procession reformed and marched to a point near the depot, where the entire crowd of them was "taken" by a photographist. They were dismissed at the lodge until night. At four o'clock, P. M., the Atlantians partook of a superb dinner, got up in the "ne plus ultra" style of Griffin. The viands were rich and in rare profusion, and wit and sentiment ruled the hour. At night the Atlantians were invited to a fine supper and a huge party, where all enjoyed themselves. We shall not be astonished to hear of some of our young "Odd Fellow's" going back to Griffin repeatedly. The ladies made general inquiry why "Sam." didn't come down too. The Odd Fellows returned at four o'clock this morning, highly delighted with their trip to Griffin, and the hospitality, liberality, geniality, and sociality of the Odd Fellows and people of Griffin, and the beauty and intelligence of her women.

SAWYER ON ABSTRACT RADICALISM.—This illustrious carpet-bagger, we believe from Massachusetts, but representing Mr. Calhoun's State, (shades of the mighty dead!) has been getting his snout soundly thwacked as he presumingly attempted to thrust it into the government swill-tub. He reasonably thought, no doubt, that if a carpet-bagger from abroad or a rancid apostate indigenous to the soil, could no. be suffered to have the run of the Treasury he disappointed the ends of his creation. He was kindly, but firmly told by Sumner and Trumbull that he and his people must wait, and these ring-masters give the gallant South Carolinian to understand that though reconstructed as to the State, he was not as to the stealings. Whereupon, Sawyer, disgruntled, rejoins:

> Our enemies tell us in the South that we represent nobody; and when we come here we are told the charges which the rebels make are true—namely, you represent nobody, and must therefore expect to be ignored; and it had been said by persons in high position, you must recollect that the white vote in your State was a small affair. Has it come to this? That any members of the Republican party, which had declared for the political equality of all men, without regard to race or prevoius condition of servitude, should speak to him in this manner about the white vote of the South? All these States gave a majority of votes in favor of the Administration; and were they to be told they should have less patronage than the Democratic State of Ketnucky?

☞ A few days ago, one Ferdinand Cox, of Philadelphia, stole a box of cigars; he Curiosities of Politics.

Political parties, like all other things human, have been, and are more or less unstable. The more honesty and ability in them, the greater the stability, and the converse.

Occasionally some organization finds life that has a little more than an average share of vacillation and inconsistency. The best public parties are those whose principles are soundest, and whose leaders have the most brains and integrity. But the best won't stand too close a scrutiny. Human nature is weak in its strongest aspects; and nothing perfect on this earth exists.

And if the impartial critic is to believe the opposition, the party it is opposed to, is the corruptest and most incompetent party that ever existed. While if any organization is allowed to prove its own character, it is a set of regular, undeniable angels, that never did, nor never could do wrong.

All that is necessary for a political body to become scamps and ninnies, is to get into power. Whatever may have been their status for talent and purity before, getting into power incontestibly shows their rascality and miserable inefficiency in the eyes of those that went out of power.

The sensible man forms its opinion neither upon the fulsome commendation of the friend, or the unstinted invective of the foe.

The Radical party certainly has had its full share of lampooning, of derision, of scathing criticism, of bitter vituperation. That it has deserved some of it, none can doubt. That it has deserved a great deal of it, none dare question. Some of its best men have given it fits. Mr. Sprague's exacerbating ventilations have stirred up the elect tremendously. After sundry years of Sphynx-like silence, he has all of a sudden exploded into a lavish volubility of novel yet strong criminations against his party, that has made him the most noted man of the day. Awkward and almost grotesque, jumbling along in a style peculiarly unique and uncommon, the vigor of his assaults, the tremendous earnestness of his enthusiasm, and the daring veracity of his exposures, have made him marked and successful, despite his drawbacks. But we did not begin this article to talk of Sprague.

We want to notice a little the craw-fishing of this party that has run the Governmental machine for the last few years; and we merely mentioned Mr. Sprague, to show that the party had got to be so bad that it was fighting itself. We profess to be a moderate man, to have a hearty contempt for humbug, to join in no abuse because it is fashionable, to do nothing in mere party zeal, to pander to no bad thing, not to fight against Radicalism simply because we are a sterling Democrat and want the Democracy in and the Radicals out, but because we believe Radicalism is wrong. Nor are we so insane as to say the masses of the Radical party are dishonest, or all of their leaders corrupt. But we do mean to say that enough of its controlling leaders are bad and able, and enough of its masses are deluded, as to have the country very badly governed. It is drunk with its power. It is spoiled by its successes. Born of revolution, the leaven of its wild origin clings to it still. Built up by successful usurpation, it has caught the lawless trick, and can't quit it. And the only way it can be broken of its bad habits, is by rendering it powerless, and giving it some education in defeat and failure.

That funny thing, its Chicago platform—the most heterogeneous collection of political plank ever scrambled together—its piebald complexion only surpassed by the mongrel composition of the party—among other comical things, said the negro was good enough voter for the South, but the virtuous North should decide that question for itself.

No sooner was that agreeable doctrine ratified by an amiable majority, when, presto! overboard goes that felicitous plank, and the 15th amendment floats out under radical management to swamp the North with its black ægis. Never before so quickly did a party turn tail on itself. It brings a broad grin on the soberest phiz to observe its unblushing stultification.

It talked glibly in that aforesaid comical platform of economy. Yet it don't practice its preach. Its extravagance hath known no limit, save when crime watched rascality because it would not have the plunder.

Mr. Grant promised that honesty and competency should be the test in filling offices. He unquestionably meant it. But this party seems to rot whatever it touches, and his fine intentions have gone in battalions to help pave the world that is said to make its entire paving material of broken purposes to do good.

Hurrah for Senator Sprague! "On with the dance," say we, that he is performing. May it prove a "break down" for this tergiversating party. The curiosities of politics show nothing to equal its feats in the misgoverning line. *

☞ A Washington correspondent tells of an old gray haired department clerk, who the other day sought out the Congressman from his district, and begged him to use his influence for his retention in office. "Oh, no," he says, "they will not spare you. You have never done anything to hurt anybody's feelings. How long have you been in the department, anyhow?" "I was appointed in 1839, thirty years ago." "Yes, away back in Jackson's administration, and you'll not be disturbed; they'll need your service. Now, tell me how much you have made from the government. How much more are you worth in this world's goods than you were when you went in there?" "Not one dollar, Judge; and if I go out now I don't know where I'll go, or what I shall do." Yet these clerkships, which yield nothing beyond a present living to honest men, are sought after with an energy that would make a fortune in productive industry.

☞ The head of the Spanish Provisional Government, (Marshal Serrano,) favors the election of the Duke of Montpensier to the Spanish throne. He indicated this in his speech in the Cortes some weeks ago, and now he has made a more explicit declaration upon the subject. Serrano is the most influential man in Spanish politics. His age, his ability, his distinguished services to his country, his long career as a Liberal—all give weight to his position and his opinion.

Taking it Cool.

Greeley lately has taken to hard, very hard swearing, so they tell it on him, and he no doubt finds his reputation of being the "Philosopher of the Tribune" slipping from under him. He has just returned from the "Beggars Pilgrimage to Washington," with his notions of "grateful Republics," and military Presidents revised and corrected. He smiles, however, over his defeat, and in a circular address to the Grand Army of "Outs," he thus grimly indulges his talent for fun:

> "Comrades in adversity! brethren of the sorehead persuasion! be soothed and comforted! Rely on it, the world is not all a dreary waste—republics are not specially ungrateful—General Grant is not a perverse, undiscerning block-head—the country is not going to the demnation bow-wows, although we have not been provided with offices. On the contrary, suns will shine and waters dance, flowers will bloom and harvests ripen, precisely as though we had bored harder or button-holded more adroitly, and so wormed our way up to the places whence more fortunate aspirants are now grinning down at us in glad exultation and measureless content. Let us, then, dear brethren! take these buffets of fortune in good part, and try to believe that there is a jewel in the toad's head, though as yet we don't begin to see it. Let us eschew profanity, which is worse than useless, and whinning, which is contemptible, and betake ourselves to our proper callings with resolute if not with joyful hearts. Let us turn with zeal to our business, if business we already have; if we have none, let us make haste to find useful work—never before more abundant—and set to doing it with all our might. Let us cherish our wives and children, if such we already have; if any of us lack those vital elements of mundane felicity, let him make haste to attain them. In short, loved compatriots, let us show how well we should have filled the offices to which we respectively aspired by showing how useful and how jolly we can be without them; and thus, if we cannot be distinguished or powerful, at least save ourselves from being accounted ridiculous or contemptible. Since no one would pity our misfortunes, let us exhibit neither wound nor scar, but go gaily on our several ways as though nothing had happened. So shall we prove ourselves superior to adversity, and show that, though we have not commanded success, we may yet rank with those who have not already justified their defeat by showing that it was deserved. Brethren, be staunch in adversity, and then, if prosperity should ever overtake you, you will know how to appreciate and enjoy it!"

A Young Man Murdered by His Companion.

From the Lexington (Ky.) Statesman.]

BELMONT, KY., April 16, 1869.

This community was startled yesterday about 12 o'clock, by the intelligence of an affray between two young men—Jenkins and Grabill—in which the former struck the latter across the back of the head with a sharp ax, inflicting a wound the full width of the blade, at which Grabill fell to the ground. Jenkins dropped the ax, took up a spade near him, and began dealing heavy blows upon the boy's face, cutting through the flesh of the cheek, and severing the lower jaw bone, another across the back of the head, fracturing the skull, and was about making another blow, when a bystander pushed him back and said: "Jenkins, you have killed the boy." Bursting out an oath, he said: "If he is not dead, I will kill him."

Young G. was taken to his father's house, where he is yet alive, but the attending physician says that no hopes of his recovery need be entertained. After committing this horrible act, Jenkins came into town, went to his boarding-house, took a seat and appeared very much pleased with his day's work. When Mr. Frity, the keeper of the boarding-house, ordered him to leave, he started to get his clothes, when a foreman met him and arrested him, and said that he would as soon "hang for killing Grabill as anybody else." He was kept here until this morning, when he was taken to Shepherdsville and lodged in jail (I suppose for safe keeping, though the officer has not yet returned.) It is stated that he made the assault upon Grabill without the slightest provocation, only that they had been joking, and Grabill ran the joke too far for him.

Jenking is represented as having been a very bad boy all his life. He is about 17—his victim about 18. This occurred on Jackson Hill, a mile from town, in the presence of a whole gang of road-hands, working for this company. It is strange that none could prevent him before he had gone so far. He is said to be from Cartersville, Ga., and was in Elizabethtown sometime, when he came here with a man whose name I do not know. J. M. R.

AN EXPENSIVE SET OF FURS.—A Paris letter says: "On the morning of his quitting the Grand Hotel for London, the Nabob of Bengal paid for three coats of Russian sable made for himself and his three sons, the cold weather, to which he is so unaccustomed, having rendered warm garments necessary. The bill for these furs amounted to 108,000f., that is $21,600. His Highness paid the bill without hesitation. Black sable of Russia is expensive. The set of this fur presented by the Emperor of Russia to Patti during her recent visit to St. Petersburg is valued at 3,000 guineas."

☞ The principle which Senator Ross says Grant enunciated, when he declared that holding office under President Johnson eighteen months a sufficient cause for removal, must apply to J. Kramer, who is married to Grant's sister, Mary, and who was appointed by Johnson as Consul at Leipsic, in 1867, which position he now holds; and also to Grant's father, whom Johnson appointed Abbott and Honor.

The quick honor of this carpet-bagger, that took fire like spunk in a hot furnace, simply because Sprague called him a "puppy dog" in face of the Senate and galleries, has been toned down into something like reason, if not moderation, by the great moral force of such men as Sumner, Sherman and Poole. Sprague consents to say, in deference to this moral suasion, that he called Abbott a "puppy dog," before the North Carolina Senator was aware of it, indeed before Abbott "spoke," —thereby, we think, doing ampler justice to both the Senator and the public. The sooner the scamp was denounced the better, we think. What could Abbott reply to this plenary—this abject recantation? Why, nothing but what he did, we suppose. "Sir, under the circumstances, seeing how dreadfully I myself blundered as to the exact point of time when you did insult me, just consider that I penitently recall what I said, which after all, Mr. Sprague, could only be said to be a threat to have satisfaction. I have it, for you have most politely given it, and therefore, I need not take it." We are dreadfully relieved—we are ourselves. But we had a slight hope of a fair hearing being accorded by our "plucky representative of the Southern chivalry" the moment we heard his reasons for his worship of the hero of Fredericksburg. Abbott says the reason he loved Burnside was that he was the "first to invade North Carolina." Georgia is still ahead, however, of the dear old North State, in the devotion and flaming hot State love of her Bullock. Abbott only wanted his State whipped—Bullock wants his State d—, well, let him tell it himself.

"A Charity that Believeth all Things."

Here is the last sample of it:

MORAL REFORM IN THE SOUTH.

This afternoon a delegation of Quakers from various portions of the country, headed by Mr. Samuel M. Janny, of Virginia, waited upon the President by invitation, and had a half hour's interview upon the subject of moral reformation at the South. It is proposed by them to appoint a Superintendent, whose duty it shall be to visit the sect in all Southern States, and endeavor to work some improvement in the condition of the people of that section. The President received them cordially, and the interview was a very pleasant one.

These shad-bellied coats in their charity believed when they went to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant to talk about "moral reform," that he, the President, did not wince, and that all sensible people, the world over, did not laugh. They believed if they came from Philadelphia that the Twitchell horror, or Probst's wholesale butchery of a family, or the Firemens' riots, (say nothing of Forney,) for which their State is responsible, are only slight perturbations in their righteous routine which call for no "improvement," or "moral reform." If they came from Massachusetts, they believed that Emerson, who stood up before a Boston audience and sneered at "another world," and declared there was "no other world," and that Wendell Phillips, who came the next week after, and in the same place and to the same crowd, said that "With the exception of a few personal vices, he believed that even Thomas Paine—the name of all names that many Christian people reviled—when he went into the other world, was much more likely to be received with 'Well done, good and faithful servant,' than many a bishop who died under the English mitre" were all right and, are, according to Yankee gospel, all marvellous proper subjects and in no need at all of Samuel M. Janny. But pshaw! why talk, why waste energy of expression upon these hypocrites, who, if they are honest are as blind as new born puppies, or if they are not, can only be answered as Christ himself answered another set just like these sanctimonious busy-bodies—"Wo unto ye Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?" But they are juggling to do that and have engaged Rev. Dr. Bellows to prove, as he attempted yesterday week to do in "All Souls Church," that "the final judgment was a superstition." Well, they may prove this. The whole North is so besotted in sin and every species of abomination has so completely interpenetrated the very tissues and marrow of its society, that unless they succeed in repudiating hell and its penal fires, they will be the most miserably prepared set to meet future accidents that ever lived in history. They propose to appoint a Superintendent—only one it seems. Well, that is quite a compliment to our society, we insist. Why it would take more than our share of missionary labor to get the President ready for church after one of Sherman's and Rollins' quarrels—and as for Ashley and Forney, Butler and a list of wretches outnumbering the stars in the "milky-way" the very plan of salvation is not broad enough to meet this pressure. Let Mr. Janny and his infidel Quakers come ahead, we will be ready for them; and after proving by statistical tables of their own getting up, that in all crimes and villainies, their own people are the most shameless and hopeless sinners on the earth, we will get up a revival for their special benefit and send them home decent Christians, and all baptized by immersion.

ILLINOIS EDITORS ON A BENDER.—On Saturday last, one hundred and twenty-three Illinois Editors, accompanied by two hundred and eighteen visitors, many of the latter being ladies, arrived in Mobile, Ala. They were welcomed by Col. Alexander McKinstry. They will be feasted and feted, and "shown the elephant" by the hospitable people of Mobile. We trust that our Mobile friends will not become ille'nois on the brain by the visit.

Touching it Gingerly.

The New York Sun, like many of its associated and sympathizing laborers in the same cause, can but see the downward tendency of public measures and morality. We use the word see advisedly, for we dare not abuse language or our convictions by saying that the Sun or its co-laborers feel this great fact. In a leader of the edition of the Sun of the 24th, we find some remarks intended to be grave and impressive, no doubt, on the decay of public probity and the disregard of all appearance of virtue which now so painfully discredit the fame of the most distinguished names in our country. But to our fancy the moral as put by the Sun, deducible from all this sad record of decadence and shame, is anything but impressive. It is to our plain understanding only farcical. Our censor sets out thus solemnly to make his accusations:

We have fallen on other times. Are they better times? On Wednesday, the 3d of March, 1869, the President elect accepted $65,000 out of a sum of money raised in New York at his own pressing solicitation for Gen. Sherman, to pay him (the President) for a house which he desired to sell. On Thursday he took the oath of office, and in his inaugural address pledged himself to the rigid execution of all laws, whether he liked them or not. He then spent nearly the entire first week of his term in trying to evade the plain provisions of salutary statutes, because they blocked the way for the admission to the most important seat in his Cabinet of the almoner who had bestowed this dazzling present. Baffled in this by the firmness of the Senate and the frowns of the public, he nevertheless installed among his constitutional advisers other individuals who, though obnoxious to this particular objection, were chiefly distinguished for having conferred upon him costly and valuable benefactions. Along with other appointments bearing this sort of trade mark, he appointed as his Secretary of the Navy a gentleman wholly incapable of filling the place, who had taken the lead in giving him a fifty thousand dollar house in Philadelphia, some three years before; and he surrendered the baton of General of the Armies to a renowned soldier, who, with his knowledge and approbation, lifted one hand to take the oath of office, while receiving with the other a tempting gift valued at one hundred thousand dollars, of which the sixty-five thousand dollar house in Washington formed a part. Not to go back to Jefferson, or Adams, or Jackson, for virtuous examples, even Andy Johnson had sense and decency enough to refuse the present of a carriage and horses, with the Presidential oath lingering on his lips.

And with premises like these the Editor thinks such examples of venality in high places "tend to make lucre the badge of honorable distinction, and the possession of riches the sole passport to power, eminence, or even respectability." "Impotent conclusion," thundered out gentler than the coolings of the stock dove's "wood notes wild." It brings to mind the description given by an impassible John Bull, of the terrible burning of Moscow. After curdling the blood by merely giving the facts as they occurred before his non-admiring eyes, he concluded: All this teaches us to beware of the bad effects of fire.

MRS. O'DONOVAN, (ROSSA.)—We are pleased to learn that this gifted lady will soon visit Atlanta, and give one of her readings here. The Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel in noticing one of her readings in Augusta, says:

"The first piece on the programme was a poem of Jean Ingelow's, "High Tide." The recitations of the first verse showed that the lady was an elocutionist of no mean order. When she came to the verse,

"All fresh the level pasture lay,
And not a shadow mote be seen,
Save where full five good miles away
The steeple towered from out the green,
And lo! the great bell farre and wide
Was heard in all the country side
That Saturday at eventide."

So perfect was her elocution that one could almost imagine he heard the tolling of the bell which "rang the sailor lads to guide." The other selections were recited in equally as fine a manner, and were received with the most enthusiastic applause.

To give some idea of the power of Mrs. O'Donovan (Rossa), we will relate a little incident which occurred during the recitation of the visit to the Prison—a poem of her own composition—which will speak more forcibly than anything which we might write. On the seat nearest to the footlights, sat a middle-aged man—a stranger in the city apparently—who had entered the building more from curiosity, we suppose, than any thing else. As the lady recited with indescribable pathos the verses descriptive of her visit, with her babe in her arms, to her husband, who, clothed in a felon's garb, "hewed the rocks of Portland heights," while pallid face and shrunken eyes too plainly showed that if assistance did not speedily come death would release the captive, the hard and ragged features of the stranger began to work convulsively and soon the hot tears coursed over cheeks albeit unused to such visitors! The "Battle of Fontenay" tested Mrs. O'Donovan (Rossa's) powers in another line, and it is but doing her simple justice to say that it fully equalled, if it did not surpass, anything else that the fair elocutionist recited."

GEN. A. R. WRIGHT.—In noticing the trial for murder of A.W. Jaekson in Washington county, the editor of the Central Georgian, says: "Gen. Wright possesses rare ability as an advocate. He leaves not a stone unturned, but searches out even the smallest item that can in the least advance the cause of his client. We never saw him labor more assiduously than on this occasion. His style of addressing a jury is somewhat of the humorous order, but at times full of the most touching pathos. Now he has his hearers bathed in tears and the next moment convulsed with laughter. His effort on the present occasion was commensurate with the importance of the case before him."

FOOD FROM AUSTRALIA.—It is stated that the consumption of fresh beef and mutton put up in tin cans in Australia and sold here at seven cents a pound is increasing so rapidly that 200,000 a week are furnished to the Black country alone. What then is to hinder the great quantities of beef now wasted in South America from being treated in the same fashion? In Chester it is said that many poor people are living now on a little Indian meal and buttermilk—such is the condition of the whole cotton manufacturing region, which a few nights ago was shaken by an earthquake, which drove people from their houses and even threw down one or two chimneys.

CAN THIS BE TRUE?—The New York Express announced nearly two weeks ago, the report that a Federal officer was deeply interested in the publication known as the Imperialist; but did not mention names. The Newark Daily Journal of the 20th, makes the astounding statement that the Imperialist is edited under the auspices and at the cost of the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Adolph Borie, and alleges that Grant himself has been distributing copies to his friends.

☞ The Evening Post, of New York, yesterday has a long leader on corruption, from which the following extract is taken:

In Congress, also, special legislation takes up the greater part of every session; and the newspapers during the session are filled with the reports of the appeals of lobbyists representing now the copper, now the iron, now the woolen interest, now a railroad ring, and anon a whisky ring, besieging committees of Congress to help them to advance their schemes for private emolument and advantage.

So fierce has become the struggle of contending interests in Washington, that wise men have noticed, with alarm, the bitter feeling aroused which arrays section against section, weakens the bonds of brotherly union, and makes Washington the scene of a struggle in which not only the great interests of the country are sacrificed, but the very perpetuity of our union is threatened.

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS—Canadian Views of Mr. Sumner's Speech.—The Canadian papers are very free in their comments on Senator Sumner's speech—indeed, much more free than complimentary. The Toronto Globe, the most liberal journal of the Dominion, says:

It is not possible to guage moral offenses by a money standard. What then? Why, if this talk amounts to anything, it means, as Mr. Thornton said, War. Mr. Sumner says England should be expected to admit that the recognition was unlawful. Nobody knows better than Mr. Sumner that that is the very thing England will not do. The talk which Sumner indulges in shows very clearly that the American Government does not wish the question settled forthwith. It is useful in the business of home politics, and it is regarded as a convenient screw for pressing a good bargain with Britain in other ways.

PROGRESS.—The New York Times must bear the responsibility, as undoubtedly it ought, for the following announcement. The "Brooroo" in cultivating the minds of its elevees must use powerful fertilizers to have produced these results. It beats Gen. Pope's promises even.

Columbia, April 14, 1869.—In my last I mentioned the fact that a colored woman had been heard in a speech before the Judiciary Committee of the South Carolina Legislature. The fact is significant of progress—is a representative as well as a significant fact, in that it shows us that the old barriers of conservatism and precedent, nowhere ever stronger than in the Palmetto State, are sensibly yielding to the inevitable necessities of the new regime.

THE ADMINISTRATION AND THE PRESS.—Whatever may be said of it in other respects, there is one particular in wich General Grant's distribution of official patronage meets our unqualified approbation;—we mean its ostentatious neglect of the public Press. No editor of an influential newspaper has been appointed to public office, with one exception, and in that case it was promptly declined. Whatever may have been the motive of this exclusion, the fact is eminently serviceable to the profession which it somewhat contemptuously ignores.

IN A NUTSHELL.—There is no practical liberty without the right of free exchange said Mr. Perry in a free trade speech the other night. This is a wholesome truth well put. So soon as the government begins to interfere with the right of one man to trade his commodity for something else, unless this is done for the legitimate purpose of taxation, it makes an oppressive invasion of private rights.

☞ The fishermen on the Delaware river complain that this will be an unprofitable season for shad. Every year this fish is becoming scarcer; the fishermen are of the opinion that the scarcity is attributable to the condition of the water, as it is at times unfit for them to live in, owing to refuse from gas works in the neighborhood of Philadelphia.

☞ The Arizona Cotton Factory, established in Claiborne parish, Louisiana, since the war, is now paying a net profit of twenty-four per cent. per annum. This income is realized on a capital of $80,000, and with a part of the machinery counted in the capital, not yet at work.

☞ The nutmeg tree, it is reported, is found growing in the Sierra Nevada range in California.

So Ceylon may as well quit the business. We can now produce nutmegs from Connecticut to California. Great country.

☞ It is asserted in Philadelphia papers that Mr. John O'Byrne, the principal counsel for Twitchell, has in his possession the slung-shot with which Twitchell committed the murder. The story is that the murderer, soon after the crime was committed, confided the hiding place of his deadly weapon to his counsel, who found it in the spot indicated, and has had it ever since.

The "Tilton style" Buggy, for workmanship and material has NO EQUAL, except the "Abbot" buggy. My Repository, one of the largest in the city, possesses the advantage in its location of costing less than half the rent of those uptown, I can therefore offer my vehicles at less price.

JOSH BILLINGS ON BOOKS.—I luv books; they are handy to hev round a domestic habitation or a bisiness place. There are various kinds ov books, viz.: Music books, law books, blank books, etc. Books hev good effects on people. 'Twas only 'tother day I saw a bisiness man writing in a ledger, and as he wrote a most beautiful smile lit up his face; I sed tu myself, he's struck ile, and is making the entry. So seein him in sich a good humor, I gently inquired the cause ov the physiomatical illumination, an' he sed 'twasn't ile exactly, but he felt good whenever he writ in a book manufactured by W. R. HANLEITER, Granite Block, Atlanta, and I believe him.

HALE FELLOW'S WELL MET.—John H. Underwood, the "Big John," of Bill Arp fame, on meeting up with "our fat boy," who is fully one-third larger, at Rome, the other day, remarked, "You appear to be experimenting on nature, and are trying to see how fat you can get without bustin' your hide." The Colonel smiled and proceeded to get ten more subscribers.

apr 11d— REDWINE & FOX.

JOB WORK.—We are prepared to fill all orders for plain, fancy and ornamental Job Work, in the neatest style on the shortest notice and at living rates.

I HAVE a lingering love, I own, for an old doctrine held by some, that woman's truest sphere is found within the hallowed walls of home. But when the babe alarmed the house by rolling headlong down the stair—"Where's Mrs. Jones?" I cried to Jane, with hands upraised in blank despair, "She's at Cook's Rink," replied the maid, "a ridin' the velocypade."

BRADFIELD'S REGULATOR.—As a rule we do not like to recommend anything called patent medicine, but when an article of real tested, genuine merit presents itself, we feel that we do injustice to ourselves and to our patrons by withholding our commendation. The genius of our worthy citizen, Dr. Josiah Bradfield certainly took a happy and benificent turn when it led him to discover the great "Female Regulator," truly and appropriately called "Woman's best friend." That the Regulator embodies medicinal qualities of the rarest virtues, particularly adapted to a single disease, there can be no question on this point. We have the evidence of the best citizens of this and adjoining States—thousands who a few short months ago were lingering, suffering, pale and almost disconsolate with disease are today, from its effects, rejoicing in the bloom of health, and all who know anything of it unite in saying that it has been truly and rightly named, Woman's Best Friend.

Within a few months the demand for this remedy has increased so rapidly that the proprietor has found it impossible to supply it. He has just completed arragements by which he can put up two hundred and fifty gross per week, and will increase facilities as demand arises. We opine that at no distant day this wonderful Remedy will have a reputation world-wide.

WALLACE & FOWLER have a comfortable house to rent.

OUR JOB OFFICE.—The reputation of this department of our establishment has been secured, we are glad to know, and is still maintained by the quality and style of the work turned out. We take a pleasure in announcing that our facilities and resources have been augmented by the addition of the latest improved styles of presses, type and furniture, which in the hands of skillful workmen will be used with that taste and cunning that have heretofore distinguished their handiwork. Mindful, too, of the pessure of the times, all work will be done at a cost that shall be approved by even the exacting customer.

A full stock of paper, cards and materials always on hand.

WE had a call last evening from the gentlemanly agent of Mrs. O'Donovan (Rossa,) Col. Healey, who is stopping at the National Hotel, and who informs us that Mrs. O'Donovan will commence her readings here on Wednesday, the 5th proximo. We would commend the Colonel to the press generally.

GOOD FOR SAVANNAH.—The "White Fawn" and "Duchess" proved failures in the Forest City.

GEORGIA RAILROAD AND BANKING COMPANY.—It will be a source of gratification to the many friends of this popular institution to learn that they have re-established their agency in this city, under the superintendence of that sterling man, Perino Brown. It will receive deposits and sell exchange on all the principal cities. Having no circulation to protect the whole capital is guaranteed for the safty of depositors. The Georgia Railroad is now in a prosperous condition. The report to the stockholders in May will show an increase in receipts of over $100,000 above the receipts of last year. The road is out of debt, and in good order. The office is in the new depot.

SINGULAR JUXTAPOSITION.—In a photograph taken of Granite Block, can be seen the following in close juxtaposition: "The Young Mens' Library Association," "The Ladies' Home."

PRIZES FOR THE FIREMEN.—Er Lawshe, in seven days and sixteen hours after receiving the order for four of the prizes to be awarded to successful contestants at the firemen's parade on Monday next, had them in store from the factory in West Meriden, Connecticut. Three of the prizes are silver speaking trumpets, elegantly double X engraved; and gold lined. The largest has an engraving of a steamer and other insignia of the Fire Department. The second is similar, except the engraving of the steamer. The third has medallion heads in lieu of other engravings. The fourth prize is a silver water set, consisting of an ice pitcher, two goblets and salver. They are on exhibition at Er Lawshe's Jewelry Emporium.

IN-SURANCE agents have to have great as-surance to succeed in life—but policy is their motto.

GEORGIANS AT THE LOUISIANA FAIR.—A New Orleans correspondent of an exchange says, in reporting an account of the above Fair, "a Georgian has received the blue ribbon for his "improved revolving portable corn, hay and tobacco screw press." Another Georgian exhibits an improved cotton press.

TAX FI FAS.—The tax fi. fas. of Fulton county against parties for non-payment of State and county taxes, have been placed in the hands of Mr. T. G. Gresham, Bailiff. Those interested would do well to call and see him.

THERE are now six bar-rooms in Dahlonega.—Signal.

How many practitioners?

FIRE NEWS.—The Washington Fire Company of Augusta practiced the other night. They ran a distance of 450 yards, unreeled 100 feet of hose, and threw a stream of 150 feet in 2 minutes and 15 seconds.

The following Augusta Companies will attend the Parade of the Atlanta Fire Department on Monday next: "Clinch" No. 2 (steamer), "Vigilant" No. 3, (steamer.) "Fillmore" No. 4, (steamer.) and "Augusta" No. 5, (hand-engine.)

The Metropolitan Fire Company of Savannah, recently tried the new steamer F. S. Bartow. With sixty pounds of steam through one hundred feet of hose, and an inch and one-eighth nozzle, she threw a solid stream of water one hundred and ninety-seven feet and nine inches, and through an inch and one-sixteenth nozzle, she threw a solid stream of water two hundred and nine feet.

Free passes over the road will be given to the firemen from Augusta, who intend coming to Atlanta, to take part in the approaching anniversary.

REV. JOSEPH E. CARTER will preach for the First Baptist Church, this Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, and every evening during the present week. Mr. Carter is a young minister of great zeal and usefulness in the cause of Christ. The public are most cordially invited to attend. Place of holding service, the Hall, corner of Forsyth and Mitchell streets.

HON. JAMES S. HOOK.—The Editor of the Central Georgian in alluding to the trial of A. W. Jackson for murder, in Washington county, pays the following deserved compliment to Hon. J. S. Hook:

"The argument was concluded by Hon. J. S. Hook, in a speech of something over two hours. We thought it one of the Judge's ablest efforts, and we believe the same opinion was entertained by the majority present. As prosecuting attorney he is peculiarly gifted. Seeking not the position, but feeling none of that false sensibility that would deter him from doing his whole duty as such, he gives to the cause the full force of an honest heart and well stored mind. His style of oratory is such as to hold the undivided attention of jury and people. He speaks from the heart, and his words fall not upon listless ears, but sink deep into the minds of his hearers and find a lodgement there."

THE BUCK HORN HANDLE KNIFE.—We learn that a large crowd assembled at Decatur, on Saturday night last, "when graveyards yawn" to witness the annual presentation of the buck horn handle knife to Milt. Candler, of the "DeKalb Ugly Club." The knife was presented by Hon. George Peavey, and the recipient of the gift responded in appropriate terms.

FARE TO CARTERSVILLE.—The fare to Cartersville, on Saturday next, for the round trip there and back, will be $1 50. Children and servants on duty, 75 cents. From Marietta, whole tickets $1; half tickets, 50 cents. From Acworth, whole tickets 50 cents; half tickets 25 cents.

THE ATHENS POST.—Our good and handsome friend, Sam. P. Ivins, is at his old Post of editor of that sparkling sheet, the Athens Post, which, to him, is the post of honor. Sam is posted, and gets out a neat and well filled paper. We wish Sam abundant success.

A GOOD PUFF.—Bulwer says that if Jupiter had tried the weed Juno would never have been able to ruffle him. The great novelist must have been thinking of Meador's cigars.

THE COTTON STATES LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY!

Principal Office - - - Macon, Ga.

I TAKE this method of informing my friends that I hold the appointment of Local Agent for this section of Georgia, representing this great and only Home Institution!

Life Insurance anywhere is a good thing, but to be assured by your own people, and by your own friends, is much better. No Company in the world has ever given the public a surer guarantee of honest and efficient administration than the "Cotton States Life Insurance" has in the selection of its Executive Board. This insures a safe and wise application of income. It has an actual guaranteed and paid up of which $100 000 is deposited with the Comptroller General of the State of Georgia, as indemnity to policy holders.

CAPITAL OF $500,000!

This places the business and solvency of this Institution as far beyond contingency as it is possible for any merely human institution to be.

I shall visit all sections of my district as soon as I can arrange my plans of operation, when I shall explain the advantages of Life Insurance, and especially the superior advantages offered by the Cotton States Life Insurance Co.

In the mean time I am ready to answer all applications of those desiring Sub-Agencies in behalf of our Company, as well as inquires in regard to its peculiar mode of doing business.

OFFICERS:

DR. JOHN BULL'S Great Remedies.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vendor of the Celebrated

Smith's Tonic Syrup,

—OR—

Chills and Fever

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southwestern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

Bull's Worm Destroyer.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine. The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

VILLANOW, Walker Co., Ga., June 29, 1866.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know of no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary, they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine direct from you. If I can get it upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it. I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line M. D.'s, but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because we may be ignorant of its combination. For my part, I shall make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and secured the sole right to secure that knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of disease to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon, and inform me of you best terms. I am, sir, most respectfully.

JULIUS P. CLEMENT M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

A Good Reason for the Captain's Faith.

READ THE CAPTAIN'S LETTER AND THE LETTER FROM HIS MOTHER.

BENTON BARRACK'S, Mo., April 30 1866.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often, my wounds have not healed yet. I have not set up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige.

Capt. C. P. JOHNSON,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April 30, 1866, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Captain Johnson:

DR. BULL—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died leaving the above C P. Johnson to my care At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhœa and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It CURED HIM. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever scores and general debility. Perfect success has attended it. The cures effected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible, but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully, JENNIE JOHNSON.

BULL'S CEDRON BITTERS

AUTHENTIC DOCUMENTS,

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony of Medical Men

STONEY POINT, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son-in-law, who was with me in the store, has been down with rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist, who has been in bad health, tried them and he also improved.

Dr. Coffee, who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affected—he improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed, the Cedron Bitters has given you great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall, especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, care Rickett & Neely.

Respectfully, C. B. WALKER.

☞ Prof. J. S. Holmes, of Charleston, S. C. gives some account of the bone phosphate beds of South Carolina, their formation, geological age, and the character of their fossils.

The beds are but a few feet thick, but are closely packed with phosphate, marl most heavily charged with phosphate of lime, buried in reddish and blue, tough clay, from which the bones take their fossil color. Bones of all the known animals of that region are found, such as the deer, fox, wolf, raccoon, opossum, peccary, horse, etc., and among them human bones, well defined, from which he inferred that a race of men had inhabited that coast before the American Indian, and of rude civilization—arrow heads being also found. The lecture was illustrated by very many specimens of fossils of whale and shark teeth, horses' teeth, etc. The Professor gave as his opinion that the coast, at the time of the depositing of clay and marls, was characterized by lagoons, into which the animals had penetrated and been mired; that a subsequent subsidence of the coast had taken place, and a lower marl had broken up by the action of the sea, and carried backward into the lagoons, now close on the coast, and deposited, and afterward charged with phosphate of lime. The deposits are now worked for economical agricultural purposes, and lie almost immediately around Charleston. They prove of great value as fertilizers, and may be said to be the great mineral wealth of South Carolina in this her greatest need.

☞ A Dublin dispatch sets forth that on April 3d Lord Cloncurry committed suicide at his residence, Lyons Castle, County Kildare. His Lordship had been under restraint for some time, having recently twice attempted self-destruction by the most extraordinary means, but on that day eluded the vigilance of his medical attendant and threw himself from his bedroom window; the result of the injuries he received being that he survived but an hour. The deceased Peer (Edward Lawless) was the third Baron; was born September 13, 1816, and succeeded his father in 1853. He leaves a widow, Elizabeth, only daughter of John Kirwan, of Castle Hackett, and eight children, of whom four are sons and four daughters.

☞ We learn from Berlin that a Prussian officer who was in the Confederate service during our war, and who was on duty at Charleston, has communicated to the Prussian Government the secret of the torpedo of American invention, which was found very serviceable in the defense of Charleston harbor. Experiments were lately made at Kiel with this particular torpedo, in the presence of naval and military officers designated by the government; and they were perfectly successful, as they blew a vessel which had been prepared for the purpose all to pieces. The officer (Von Scheliha) who communicated the secret, has received an appointment on the staff of the Prussian service.

☞ The Gazette Hebdomadaire has an article on the Siamese twins. We discover nothing in it additional to what has appeared in American and English journals. One fact, however, from the English investigations of the twins, had escaped our notice. Under the sphygmograph the pulse of Eng, who is the larger and more robust, gave a more powerful impulse than that of Chang, whose arterial system is said to furnish evidence of organic senility. The Gazette says one of the brothers appears "called to" an existence of longer duration than the other; and that the day may come when will arise for the first time, the question of detaching a living man from a corpse.—Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

☞ A Feejee Island correspondent of the Honolulu Gazette says there are at Libruka, on the island of Ovalan, about thirty foreigners, all sailors, most of whom have run away from ships and turned Feejeeans. The principal man among them, and the one who has most influence with the chiefs and in fact is a very respectable and steady man, is David Whiffy, who, thirty years ago, left a Nantucket whaler, and making friends with the chiefs of Libruka, settled there. He has a number of wives and a large family.

☞ An Alexandria dispatch states that on April 2d, a timely discovery was made of an attempt to assassinate the Viceroy. An explosive machine, with a powder-train leading to the door, and attached by a tube to the gas pipe, was found under the seat of the viceregal box in the theater at Cairo. The Viceroy was apprised of the projected attempt on his life, and stayed away. The perpetrators were unknown, but several persons had been arrested on suspicion. His Highness had received the congratulations of the foreign Ministers and Egyptian functionaries on his escape.

☞ How often do you hear the complaint from mother and father that their son or daughter is not well; that they have no appetite; that they feel languid; that their head aches; that they are growing thin and feeble, and they have no life or energy left. That they are low-spirited, and perfectly incapacitated to participate in any pleasures, or perform any mental or physical duty. And the question is often asked, what shall I do for them? or, what shall I give them? Our answer is, let them try PLANTATION BITTERS moderately three times a day, and our word for it they will recover.

A CHALLENGE TO THE WORLD!

WE challenge the world to produce a better or a stronger recommendation for any article for any purpose than the following:

NOVEMBER 1ST, 1868.

TESTIMONIALS:

We select the following extracts for the benefit of those who have not used Rhodes' "Standard" Manure:

S. Wyatt, Esq., of Allington Plantation, near Waynesboro, Ga., writes as follows to Messrs. B. M. Rhodes & Co.:

"Your Phosphate I am highly delighted with; I gave it a fair trial along with several other Standard Manures, and I regard it fully equal if not superior to the best of them. On one field of 100 acres, that I am sure would not, in its natural state, have produced over 400 lbs. of seed cotton to the acre. I have already gathered 700 pounds, and think I shall get fully 200 pounds more.

"Two other fields of 100 acres, better land, I have gathered, at two pickings, over 1,000 pounds to the acre of seed cotton, and think I shall get 200 pounds more.

"I tried it, also, on corn, and found it very good, but not equal in its results to the cotton crop. Several of my neighbors, whose lands adjoin my own, and is pretty much the same character of land, who used no fertilizer at all, have signally failed, making no more than half a crop, if so much as that. Where I applied Rhodes' Phosphate the cotton was heavily fruited, bolls larger, the staple longer, stouter and better than where none was used, so much so that any one, even though he may never have seen the growth before, could readily see it. The only objection to it is, it causes the cotton to open faster than we can possibly gather it—at least, such is my experience."

T. C. Howard, Esq., of Darien, Ga., writes as follows:

"It is proper that I should say the results of the use of your fertilizer have been very marked and indeed surprising. I have made more cotton by its aid on worn out land, that has not been in cultivation in two years past, than I have been able to do on the best swamp or bottom land on my place in Mississippi."

ATHENS, GA., January 23, 1869.

Messrs. P. P. Pease & Co., Atlanta: I applied the two tons of Rhodes' Super-Phosphate, which you furnished me last year, at the rate of 400 pounds to the acre, on thin land, considerably exhausted by continued cultivation, without manure, and have no hesitation in saying that it is an excellent fertilizer for cotton. On the eight acres to which I applied it, I picked upwards of 8,000 pounds of seed cotton—more than double what the land would have produced without the fertilizer. It is also proper to mention, that while the caterpillars stripped all the leaves and young bolls off an adjoining patch, manured with Dickson's Mixture, commencing their ravages in August, they did not attack that manured with Rhodes' Super-Phosphate until the first week in October.

WILLIAM M. BROWNE.

Thousands of certificates and letters could be published, showing the value of Rhodes' "Standard," a quick and permanent fertilizer.

HOW TO UTILIZE THE OAK FORESTS —OF THE— SOUTHERN STATES.

THE Undersigned is now ready to grant Lisences or to sell Factory or Territorial rights for the use of his Improved Appliances for the Manufacture of Imperishable Concentrated Extract from Oak Bark, for Tanning and Coloring purposes, requiring them for either a small royalty or a reasonable consideration for excelsior rights.

A Factory complete in all its appointments, capable of manufacturing 50 barrels of Extract every 24 hours—will cost Eight Thousand Dollars, not including cost of motive power, which may be of Steam or Water, and of 25 Horse Power.

A Factory of half the capacity, or 25 bbls per 24 hours, will cost Five Thousand Dollars. While a Factory capable of producing from 12 to 15 bbls per day—will cost, not to exceed Three Thousand Dollars.

The above estimates include cost of Building, Tanks—which are of wood—Mill, Condensing Appliances, and every requisite save motive power, which may be of Water or Steam, and of from 15 to 30 horse power as per capacity of Factory.

These new devices for Manufacturing Concentrated Extract are in practical use, and have the endorsement of the best judges as being the most perfect, simple and cheapest in use.

Competent men will be provided for putting these Factories in opperation for those to whom lisences may be granted. All particulars may be learned by addressing,

EVENING EDITION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA::::::::APRIL 28.

LAKE'S CIRCUS.—We learn that every man, woman and child in North Georgia are "keeping their eye on the boss" of Bill Lake's Circus. The attendance amounts almost to an ovation.

BROOM CORN.—Why don't our farmers turn their attention to the cultivation of broom corn? It is quite as easily cultivated as the common corn; our climate and soil are admirably adapted to it; it is a sure crop, and is probably more remunerative than any other production of this section of the country. Almost any acre of land that will produce a half bale of cotton or thirty bushels of corn will turn out a ton of broom corn.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL.—We have already, spoken in the highest terms of this new publication; but have no hesitancy in again commending it. The Journal is published in the neatest possible style; the new novel of Victor Hugo, which appears only in its columns, is, in our opinion, worth more than a dozen times the subscription price; the detached engravings, suitable for framing or the portfolio, are real gems of art; and the essays and literary miscellany are evidently from the best scribes of the country. Appleton's Journal is a real credit to American literature, and we are glad to see it in so large demand.

ENGLISH OPERA BOUFFE.—We were pleased to meet with Mr. Sutton, the gentlemanly Agent of B. F. Whitman's English Opera Bouffe, this morning. He informs us that Mr. Whitman, with a talented company, will give four representations in this city, commencing on Friday night next, of "Opera Bouffe." The performances are chaste, and of a character not to offend the most fastidious taste. Miss Jennie Kimball, the new prima donna, sings and acts in a manner charming and almost unsurpassable. She has created a "furore" in every city she has visited. The child wonder, "La Petite Corinne," only five years of age, is one of the great attractions of the attractive corps. With wonderful ease and grace, she sings in character all the new and popular Lingard songs of the day, such as "Walking Down Broadway," "Captain Jinks," etc.

A rich treat is in store for our citizens, and one that we are assured will be of a pleasing and inviting character.

Father Ryan and His Lecture.

Last night, with hundreds of the fairest and best of this city, we took our seat in "Davis' Hall," to hear and see that remarkable man, Father Ryan—the holy, devoted man of God, and one of the brightest and dearest sons of the South. And, as is often the case, our prefigured ideal of the man was sadly at fault.

Upon the Reverend Father's introduction in a few most appropriate words from our gallant and popular friend, Gen. W. S. Walker, we had before us a man who, in all his presence and physical characteristics, made a most profound impression upon every being present. The speaker with a grave, not to say solemn, aspect, slowly, and evidently in great physical prostration, rather shuffled than walked to the footlights. In the pause of a full minute, at least, before he uttered a word, we had time to survey the strange and almost weird look and aspect of the orator. Father Ryan is about five feet nine or ten inches in height, and with fleecy hair in a pile of cork-screw ringlets, banked up above a high and somewhat retreating forehead, and falling in a wavy mass down his shoulders, and pale and delicate of feature, we never beheld but one man upon a platform whose whole physique so won upon the attention and the sympathy of an audience. That man our readers all know, is no other than Alexander H. Stephens. Father Ryan's voice is clear and so peculiarly incisive, that when he uttered a word that he meant to do so, cut to the very bone like a lancet. Had he only the happy organ that sone men have, and could modulate his voice, his pathetic passages would overburthen and almost break the heart. We thought so at least, when like the psalmist of the sepulchre he told in broken accents the sufferings of his people. Father Ryan was not logical—or at least there was no attempt at anything like statement to be followed by inference and the conclusion, that are the boast and pride of the hard and merely aggressive chopper of logic. But he was something far more and far nobler than all this ever could be. He came with a new and grand Iliad to deliver of the deeds and sufferings of a conquered people, and with a message of hope and encouragement, which he uttered like a prophet. We have hinted already that not in some things deemed essential by many to a great speech, was Father Ryan's effort great. Not, for instance, in the manner, or even pre-eminently in the matter of that speech. But in the really essential part of his mission, in the vindication of faith, in the lofty love and self-sacrifice of the principled man, who, in the defense of faith and principle, would "wrestle with the martyr for his stake, and bless Heaven for the flame." Father Ryan was sublime.

There wasnot a soul in all the throng who listened in wrapt attention, who was not perfectly sure that rather than bate one breath or soften one word of all the message of truth he came to utter, that that pale, fragile form that stood before them would have walked bare-foot and with a chain round his neck to the burning stake. "You may, said he kill men for maintaining principles, but thank Heaven, the principles are beyond your touch. You may trample into dust or bury the weak, but you had as well try to hide away in the grave the light of Heaven as the truth of Heaven." There was no acrimony in a word that fell from Father Ryan's lips; not a look betokening the least uncharitableness, but when he spoke of those who breaking down in their faith in truth, fled to policy and worldly devices, the orator stood before his audience looking so undaunted and so grandly good, that by contrast the men he characterized were most pitiably dwarfed and condemned. We are not unmindful, neither was the eloquent orator, of the almost certain censure and misrepresentation that will be uttered of the words and spirit of the lecture. But Father Ryan emphatically discountenanced all violence, and counselled all patience of wrongs and injustice. He said more than once that he himself held no one in the world responsible for his views of the "Lost Cause"—its supporters, or its future impressions on history and society. We have very imperfectly, we are aware, among the multiplicity of our duties and the pressure on our time, reported this most impressive lecture. Its effects will be long felt, not like the hostile speeches made against the South by the cloth, in heart-burnings and in all uncharitableness, but in its ennobling lessons of endurance and sacrifice for conscience and country's sake—in its teachings that something besides material good makes the true nobility of men and nations—in its example of sublime courage. No one fortunate enough last night to have hung upon Father Ryan's utterances could have gone away without renewed purposes to be a better man and a truer patriot.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.]

The Georgia Baptist Convention.

CUTHBERT, GA., April 26.—The Georgia Baptist Convention is now holding its annual session in this place. We are having a very warm reception as respects both temperature and hospitality. We are in the midst of what would be called very respectable summer heat, in the latitude of Atlanta. As a compensation we are having the flowers which springs warm breath is now blowing into luxuriant bloom, together with the strawberries and early vegetables abounding in the gardens of our hosts, and which, with the most generous hand, they transfer, duly compounded, to their tables for the gratification of their guests. It is my good fortune to be lodged in the hospitable mansion of J. McGunn, Esq., and his excellent lady; and I am sure if my fellow-delegates are as well provided for as I am, they must have said more than once, "The lines are fallen unto us in pleasant places." I had no idea of finding such a pleasant little city in this section of the State. With a locality quite salubrious, an intelligent and refined population, the circumjacent country responding liberally to the labors of the husbandman, there is no reason why this city should not be amongst the most progressive in the State. But to the Convention.

This body, you know, embraces in its constituency every section of the State. It is composed of delegates elected by the Associations, and by Missionary Societies contributing to its treasury. It is in no sense a legislative body. Among Baptists there is no eclesiastical court superior to the Churches. Other denominations have their courts of appeal. In the Presbyterian Church for example, if the decision of the Session should not bo acceptable, the aggrieved party may carry his case to the Presbytery. From this he may, if he elect, go to the Synod, and if the verdict of this tribunal be unsatisfactory, he may carry the controversy to the General Assembly, as the highest court of appeal. But in Baptist Churches the decision of the Church must settle the point in dispute. Should such decision be repugnant to either party he may have the case re-tried, and he may have a succession of trials, if the Church consent; but there is no superior earthly power before which the decisions of the Churches may be reviewed and reversed. Our Conventions, therefore, exercise no authority over our Churches. They are merely societies to deliberate as to the best methods of promoting the various objects of benevolence which may be engaging the attention of the denomination. The principal interest fostered by this Convention is educational. Mercer University, having a fund of $150,000, is committed to its care; and as an illustration of the admirable manner in which this fund has been managed, I mention that the report of the Treasurer, made to this Convention, shows that out of assets amounting to nearly $200,000 in 1860, only about $30,000 were lost by the calamities of the late desolating war.

The Convention was organized on Friday last by electing Dr. P. H. Mell, Moderator, and Revs. G. R. McCall and N. A. Bailey, Clerks. Rev. W. H. Davis delivered the introductory address. It was a timely and evangelical performance. Rev. S. P. Callaway, late pastor of the Baptist Church in La Grange, preached on Sunday a discourse on education, indicating extraordinary intellectual vigor, as well as earnest piety. I notice in the Convention Judges Wellborn, Clark and Vason, together with many of the most eminent Professors and ministers from various parts of the State.

DELEGATE.

CORRECT SENTIMENTS.—The last Grand Jury in Pierce county, in their presentments for the April term, says:

"While we regret that now and then we find violations of the criminal law, and that there are in our midst one or two persons who, in a drunken row, disturb the peace and good order of our county, we do congratulate ourselves and the community upon our entire freedom from flagrant violations of the law and general freedom from crime which we find in our midst. And we wish it distinctly understood that in the county of Pierce no man has been or is now in danger on account of his political opinions, no matter whence he comes, in our midst, and we welcome amongst us all who come to add to our prosperity, and who conduct themselves as all good citizens should.

We believe in law and order, and we do most sincerely condemn all resort to Lynch law, in the redress of grievances or the punishment of crime, and if the law-breakers and violaters are always made to know and feel that the Grand Juries will hunt them up, present them, and bring them before the Courts of the country for punishment, and if the civil authorities will but exercise the authority conferred upon them in the preservation of peace and good order, we are sure there can never be a necessity for mob violence."

It is said that when the character of Mr. Chandler's speech was explained to Mr. Thorton, the British Minister, he laughed scornfully and exclaimed: "Pshaw! very good speech to tickle Yankee Doodle's vanity, but nothing more in it. Vox et præterea nihil. America can't afford to go to war with us, you know, and we shan't be frightened by threats of that kind."

Our Special Virginia Correspondence.

The University of Virginia—Strange Conduct of Charles O'Connor, of New York—Glorious Old Bob Lee—Interesting Facts and Incidents, and Sage Reflections—Sound Advice.

UNIVERSITY, OF VA., April 24. 1869.

Our little student-world is all agog. Mr. O'Connor, our orator-elect for the coming final celebration, has just sent ex-Governor Lowe, of Maryland, to negotiate for him a release from his engagement with us. When you reflect upon the immense importance which we attach to our Final, you can then imagine the flutter into which we have been thrown. Everybody is asking everybody else what is the reason of this action? and though every one knows, (according to every one's statements,) still every one refuses to tell every one who asks them; the politicians are swearing most loftily, and with hands deep-dipt in pockets, are lashing themselves into the most sublime mads, and prating on "the exigencies of the case;" the lawyers are speaking of prosecuting the 'aforesaid gentleman," and swear by the bones of Blackstone that justice must stand tho' the Heavens fall; the Meds. are damning O'Connor vigorously, and slashing their subjects with undisturbed equanimity, (Med. students, bar room clerks, railroad conductors, and owls never are flurried—they are above such a thing)—in fact the whole College is in a perfect little tempest, which is by no means allayed by the action of the committee; they (the committee) say that they are not at liberty to tell the reason of Mr. O'Connor's refusal, but that if the reason were known no Southern man could or would blame him for his course; from this we argue, that there is some political cause for his action; your correspondent got hold of one of the committee men, but found him to be a perfect oyster, whose shell had been shut by the astute Gov. Lowe, and he (the oyster) had not sense enough to open it, even if he would desire so to do.

You will please to know that Mr. O'Connor acted in the same manner once before. He was asked by the University to make the oration here, two sessions ago, and accepted the invitation. About a month before the time he had to get released on account of the Davis trial. He has never spoken for any College, North or South.

Gen. Robert E. Lee passed the University a few days ago, on his way to Baltimore, to a meeting of the Camden and Amboy railroad stockholders. The old hero received a few hearty cheers, but we did not find him soon enough to get a speech from him. He will give a small talk, I think, as he returns.

To say that the University is prospering excellently would be to say but half the truth. Aside from the pecuniary aid which she is constantly receiving, certain legislation has been performed by the Board of Visitors which will materially and inevitably advance her interests. But the main feature worthy of praise is the intense interest which the students themselves are taking in her welfare. A few statements will evidence this conclusively.

The members of the Washington Literary Society, feeling that the hall was too small to comfortably entertain the crowds which invariably flocked to hear the prize debates of her champions of the present session, determined to build a new hall. A movement to that effect was started—committee appointed and subscription list opened. It is now one month after the idea was born, and the workmen are to-day hammering lustily on the Hall. The amount required was two thousand three hundred dollars. The members of the society (about one hundred and eighty in number) contributed $1.590, the rest was made up by outsiders. There is also a magazine published by the two societies; they have just established it on a firm basis and it will succeed admirably. Three gold medals are given to the contributors each session, while to the best editor at the session, is awarded a scholarship worth $250. These measures will give it life and vigor. Use gold on any magazine and you'll see your money re-appear in the lusty living-glow of the book's complexion.

There are at present, thirty-nine Georgains in the University. I make this statement with regret, for about two-thirds of them ought, (for their own sakes, as well as on other considerations), to be now at some University or College in their own State. Until a man has graduated at some other College, or gone very far in the course, he has no business at the University of Virginia. Nine out of ten of the young fellows who come here before they have been carefully schooled, sink into nothingness or into sin. There is a certain code of boy-etiquette and youth-courtesy, which any one must acquire before he plunges into this maelstrom of real life. This can be gained best at a curriculum-college, besides the fundamentals of an education must be fairly obtained before the University is reached or bewilderment and consequent impotency will characterize the course here. All boys intending to try this place, are most earnestly advised to take the University of Georgia diploma, before they assay a campaign at this place.

Of the whole number of men here I suppose two-thirds have diplomas from some College, if we except those who are prepared expressly by the University at the various Virginia high schools. Then first take the "A B" at the University of Georgia, and then, if you will, come here for your professional finishing up. KING.

A sub-committee of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives are about to start for the South to investigate the charges against Judge Busteed. The sub-committee is composed of two Republicans and two Democrats. A most singular feature is in the fact that Mr. Eldridge, of Illinois (Democrat), is the Chairman.
